

BRIDE SUES PASTOR FOR $100,000

SAYS 'IN-LAWS' WON LOVE OF HER HUSBAND

An alienation suit for $100,000, brought by Gertrude Billing Widelsky of New York City against the Rev. Philip Widelsky and his wife, Anna Widelsky, both of Chelsea, was begun today, when her attorneys placed a writ in the hands of a deputy sheriff for service and estate attachments.

Widelsky, son of the defendants, was married on January 10, 1928, by Judge Albert Cohen of New York municipal court without the knowledge of the bridegroom's parents. He was then 19 and she was 23.

WIFE'S TRIPLE COSTS EVERS $38 A WEEK

The old play-Tinker, to Evers, to Chances—that means baseball on the New York is one of the factors in this latest play, and the decision is $38 a week in the form of separate support for Mrs. Evers.

Some time ago Johnny Evers, now assistant manager of the Boston Braves, and his wife, Helen Plumb Evers, decided to separate after 20 years of married life. The couple have one son, John E., Jr., aged 12.

The Evers home in Troy was sold, and Mrs. Evers applied for separation support and custody of the child.

The final order in the action was handed down today. Evers and his wife will have custody of the child.

Evers will send $38 out of his pay envelope from the Braves each week for the maintenance of Mrs. Evers and John, Jr. Evers did not contest his wife's action.

KNOWNSWOMEN $400 REQUEST FOR BOY

Lowell, May 4 (AP)—Because he was kind to an old man, Francis Hargrett, a Lowell high school boy, today found himself wealthier by $400.

The will of Owen A. Nerney, who at the time of his death a week ago was Lowell's oldest man, was filed for probate today, disposing of an estate of $50,000.

Under its terms, sixteen relatives will receive the bulk of the estate, but young Hargrett, who brought the aged man newspapers and in many other ways took to Nerney's enjoyment of his last years, will receive a $400 bequest.

Has No Country

The language and manners of Patrolman James "Two Gun" Baker of the Quincy police force were assailed in Quincy District Court today by Miss Elizabeth W. 24, society girl of Memorial Drive, Cambridge.

"Two Gun" had a summons issued for Miss Tens for speeding, and she refused a second summons to get her before Judge Avery.

The young woman declared "Two Gun" was anything but a gentleman and that his language was extremely rough and abusive. Judge Avery sided with the girl against the Cambridge girl to cover the cost of serving the summons. He filed the speeding charge when Miss Tens pleaded no.

Sinclair to Start Jail Term Monday

New York, May 4 (AP)—Harry P. Sinclair, multi-millionaire oil man, is spending a few days quietly with his wife and mother here before he slips away to Washington Monday to begin his 30-day sentence in the custody of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Sinclair will not travel to Washington in his palatial private car. Instead, he is expected to go quietly into a drawing room of one of the Pennsylvania train hotels and present himself at the plummy old district jail to begin sentence.

Committee Reports on Parks Survey

After two years' study of the needs and uses of the "open spaces" of the Commonwealth, a special committee appointed by Governor Alvan T. Fuller in 1927 today presented its report to Governor Alton.

Charles S. Bird, Jr., of Walpole, is chairman of the committee. During the two years the committee has been in existence the members have studied the State forest and parks, the city and town parks, the wild life, and the need for plant sanctuaries.

WIFE INSULTS POLICEMAN

After blessing her prisoner husband good-bye, Mrs. Jake Rubin turned on Inspector Colman Joyce in the courthouse corridor today, according to Joyce's report to his superiors, spit in his face, called him a "rat" and told him she would "beat" him.

The inspector's only reply, he said, was to toss his hat hotly at the woman, who he would see her husband when his sentence expired.

Rubin and Frank Costello were given a year for picking the pocket of a man on an "L" train and taking $200. They were arrested by Joyce and Inspector Thomas Lyons, who happened to be in the same car. They had previously appealed a longer sentence but agreed to take the shorter term.

FEELS ATTACK PRESENTED BY HUB POLICE

The verbal exhortation of their methods and system, administered by Atty. John P. Fenney, was reported today to draw a sharp reply from officials of the Boston police department.

Fenney's attack, launched during his two-hour summary of the case of Special Officer Jeremiah E. Sheehan, on trial before a board of captains on charges growing out of a triple auto crash in Copley sq., caused considerable stir at police headquarters.

Fenney scathingly commented on the actions of the various units and did not hesitate to attack Capt. John M. Anderson of the Back Bay police station and George W. Patterson, head of the vice squad at headquarters, who presented the charges against Sheehan.

"My client can not get a fair trial here, for the cards are stacked against him now," the lawyer declared.

On the Copley sq. crash, several persons were slightly injured including Lawrence Donnelly of Sheehan's car. Donnelly was arrested at the time on a charge of drunkenness and locked up at the Back Bay station.

Fenney said that the very body of Capt. Anderson, sitting in his car, was divided by him and that his divisions railed by him and on that account cannot do him justice.

GRAUSTEIN SATISFIED With Gannett Deal

The action of Frank E. Gannett, head of the Gannett newspaper chain, in repurchasing the securities acquired by the International Paper Company in some of his newspapers, is satisfactory to Archibald R. Graustein, president of the International Paper Co. The latter today dispatched the following telegram:

"Hon. Robert E. Healy, Chief Counsel Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D. C. 'You will doubtless be interested to know that Mr. Gannett is arranging to repurchase all the securities which we acquired in his papers; that is, the Itasca Journal, the Albany Knickerbocker Press, the Albany Evening News and the Brooklyn Daily Eagle. This will be satisfactory to us since we will continue to supply these papers with their newspaper requirements. If the commission desires to have this information in more formal shape or wishes any additional information, I shall be very glad to be of service.'"

GIRL, 14, CALLS WEDDING OFF

Admitting she and Donald Keith, 18, of East Boston would be foolish to marry now, Kathleen Perry, 14, of Cambridge St., East Cambridge today definitely called off all wedding plans and promised her fiancé that she would not marry him until she was 21.

She told the boy's mother she would deal the cold to induce him to return home to help support his invalid father, but she said: "Some day we will be married. I am willing to wait as long as necessary to become his wife. The boy and girl had applied for marriage licenses, but Mrs. Keith refused to grant her permission, which was necessary and as a result young Keith disappeared from home last night. Mrs. Keith convinced the girl her son was not earning enough to support a wife.

ELDRIDGE LOVES SUITS, KISSES SCORED

REDAUNCES HER FOR KISSING CHAIR

Mrs. Helen L. Eldridge of Newton can't have one man work for her and accept invitations from another. Attorney William Hirsch, counsel for Joseph L. Eldridge, declared today in his closing argument in the hearing of her cross-examination in Middlesex probate court.

Referring to Eldridge being seen in the vicinity of Norway St., Back Bay, Hirsch said: "The bold story of Mrs. Eldridge, corroborated by Mr. O'Hearn, is flatly denied by Mr. Sheehan, their own investigator."

Speaking of detectives trailing Eldridge, his lawyer said: "They hounded him to New York and to Omet, and not one witness against him, except 'Pittman'."

Hirsch said Eldridge had no need to hold for dancing because he had to have a partner. "Again he said: 'He wanted visiting any man's home. He wanted to go with any man's wife. Eldridge has stood the acid test right through. Glory in the man who will fight for principle hands'."

At another point Hirsch said: "Chief Justice Shaw once said: 'Pitied and loved me a finding, fountain of justice.' So (Mrs. Eldridge) was guilty of polluting the sanctity of the home in allowing this man to kiss her, and in giving him shelter on Friday because of his pety."

ELDRIDGE HAS MOTION

"They want your honor to put the seal of approval on the conduct of Mrs. Eldridge. Is your honor going to say that is proper conduct for a married woman? Your honor has no alternative except to deny the suit of Helen Eldridge because she has not sustained the burden. She has not come into court with clean hands."

At the opening of court, Attorney Hale Power, counsel for O'Hearn, submitted a motion asking that the action against his client be dismissed on the ground that there could be no evidence of misconduct to warrant a finding that Judge Harris took it under advisement.

Attorney Edward O. Proctor, counsel for Mrs. Eldridge, was to follow Hirsch, having changed places with Attorney Power in order to keep an engagement.

LOVE ONLY A MYSTERY TO 'CONNIE'

What is this thing called Love? Constance Bennett, young and beautiful Pathe star, who came on to Boston to see the play by this title, now at the Plymouth, expressed herself today as totally unable to answer the question. She is awaiting her divorce decree from Phil Plant, and denied emphatically that she had any idea of re-marrying in the near future.

"I don't believe anyone knows what love is," she declared. "I'm sure I don't. So many things go into it—joy, fear, anguish, despair."

She was quite serious for a moment. "Love is like a monkey wrench," she laughed. "It's a good thing to have around, and when you want it you simply have to break it."

SPEEDIER CARGO SHIPS NEEDED

New York, May 4 (INS)—Faster cargo ships to deliver America's commodities to the markets of the world "on a twentieth century basis" is the economic need of the hour, said Edward N. Hurley of Chicago, former war chairman of the United States Shipping Board, here today.

"This is the age of speed but slow shipping is not keeping pace on a practical basis our railroads, our express companies, our radio, transatlantic telephone and fast passenger ships we have achieved a method of personal contact with all nations."

"But in the last 15 years we have increased the speed of cargo ships only one knot an hour. Faster cargo ships would bring greater prosperity for the United States."

CUSTODY OF BOY TO BE DECIDED AFTER RULING

After two weeks of hearing evidence in the cross-divorce action of Mrs. Helen L. Eldridge of Newton and Joseph L. Eldridge, Boston broker, the case ended today when Judge Harris in Middlesex Probate Court took it under advisement.

Final arguments were made and it was stated the question of custody of the son would not be decided until after the divorce action was disposed of.

In the meantime Judge Harris will take a view of the premises in Norway St., Back Bay, where it was testified, Eldridge was seen with Mrs. Edna Smith, named by his wife.

In his argument Attorney Edward O. Proctor for Mrs. Eldridge recounted her testimony to the effect that she had visited Edna Smith with him. Later Mrs. Smith had gone to his office and said she was going to disappear. "Apparently she has disappeared," he said, "because no trace could be found of her. This is most conclusive evidence of the truth of the charges against her."

HOPES SHE WINS BOY.

Regarding Eldridge's appearance on the stand, Atty. Proctor said: "I submit, Mr. Eldridge has proved by his testimony that he is not a truthful witness, although he can stand there with the face of a saint. He gave evidence and obviously untruthful answers."

Proctor said that, regardless of how the case went, he hoped the mother would be given custody of the child.

Mrs. Eldridge can't have one man work for her and accept invitations from another. Atty. William Hirsch, counsel for Eldridge, declared.

Misrepresentation of U. S. at Geneva Annoys Hoover

Washington, May 4 (INS)—President Hoover has become somewhat irritated over efforts by Old World powers at the Geneva conference to misrepresent the American position on disarmament.

To overcome these misrepresentations, which seem to have been deliberately inspired by European principal military powers for their own diplomatic purposes, Assistant Secretary of State Clegg has been instructed to make the position of the United States as clear as possible at that conference.

That position, briefly, is: The United States is ready to consummate an agreement with the world's naval powers, principally England and Japan, which will set only limit naval strength but not reduce it below the standards of any equitable formula.

While withdrawing from participation in land armies, the United States is not withdrawing from its air power, which it considers a part of national military strength.

Mr. McLean was visiting in Panama before going to Washington for an operation of his spleen when he became ill.

HOW MAN BREATHED IN DEATH

Herbert F. Allen, wealthy Arlington real estate dealer and retired truck gardener, committed suicide in a spectacular manner in a lonely spot in the woods near Dover today.

Allen, who was 55, and descendant of an old New England family, drove into the woods, attached a 12-foot section of hose to the exhaust of his automobile and then ran the hose under a rear door into the car.

Sitting composedly in the front seat, he started the motor. The carbon monoxide gas from the exhaust quickly filled the interior of the closed car.

RIDER KILLS BODY
Winthrop Harvey, member of the C. C. Harvey Piano Co., was horseback riding through the woods when he heard the sound of the runaway car. His road to the car, threw open the doors and cut off the engine. Allen slumped forward in the seat, dead, but his body was still warm.

Allen attempted first aid but after working over the body for 15 minutes he gave up and returned to his home. The Dover police and the medical examiner were notified.

The medical examiner ordered the body removed to a Needham undertaking parlor for autopsy.

WELL LAD PLANS.
Allen evidently had prepared for his suicide some time in advance. The hose had never before been used. It was just the right length to reach from the exhaust of the car to the rear door. The spot where the man died is a mile off the main road and ordinarily the machine might not have been discovered for a considerable time.

Allen, who had lived in Lake St., Arlington, for most of his life in the garden trucking business, as was his father and grandfather, was 55 and three children alive.

Asks Clothes for
Near East Relief
Fire Commissioner Eugene G. Hultman, chairman of the old clothing campaign committee, has asked the city of Boston for near east relief, asking for money by collecting their old clothing.

The bill, which was redrafted by the ways and means committee to eliminate features objectionable to many proponents, has reached its present stage in procedure without a single opposing voice on the floor of the House, and passage is expected, but a fight is in prospect in the Senate.

Disclosures that the New England Power Co., subsidiary of the big international company, without the process of law or at least a hearing, is purporting to lease the Electric Co., is inspiring legislative leaders against the Power Trust to fresh action.

For the benefit of the public, Atty. Thomas H. Mahoney of Boston made a critical study of the redrafted bill and today he has written to the city of Boston, asking for a hearing on the "insurances" in shaping it, from beginning to end and deserved high praise.

"Under this bill it is assured that no property will be taken from a private citizen without fair value," said Atty. Mahoney.

Only members of his family and a few close friends were present in the Great Neck home where for eight years Ted watched the world from his front windows, found it jolly and passed his impressions on to others while death came to him in the Hotel Kenilworth.

He was born Thomas Aloysius Dorgan, but he was just Ted to those who paid their final respects today, as he was to his public of 80,000,000 people.

STROGES 'DEATH ROSE' TO CAR, KILLS SELF

Herbert F. Allen, wealthy Arlington real estate dealer and retired truck gardener, committed suicide in a spectacular manner in a lonely spot in the woods near Dover today.

Allen, who was 55, and descendant of an old New England family, drove into the woods, attached a 12-foot section of hose to the exhaust of his automobile and then ran the hose under a rear door into the car.

Sitting composedly in the front seat, he started the motor. The carbon monoxide gas from the exhaust quickly filled the interior of the closed car.

RIDER KILLS BODY
Winthrop Harvey, member of the C. C. Harvey Piano Co., was horseback riding through the woods when he heard the sound of the runaway car. His road to the car, threw open the doors and cut off the engine. Allen slumped forward in the seat, dead, but his body was still warm.

Allen attempted first aid but after working over the body for 15 minutes he gave up and returned to his home. The Dover police and the medical examiner were notified.

The medical examiner ordered the body removed to a Needham undertaking parlor for autopsy.

WELL LAD PLANS.
Allen evidently had prepared for his suicide some time in advance. The hose had never before been used. It was just the right length to reach from the exhaust of the car to the rear door. The spot where the man died is a mile off the main road and ordinarily the machine might not have been discovered for a considerable time.

Allen, who had lived in Lake St., Arlington, for most of his life in the garden trucking business, as was his father and grandfather, was 55 and three children alive.

Asks Clothes for
Near East Relief
Fire Commissioner Eugene G. Hultman, chairman of the old clothing campaign committee, has asked the city of Boston for near east relief, asking for money by collecting their old clothing.

The bill, which was redrafted by the ways and means committee to eliminate features objectionable to many proponents, has reached its present stage in procedure without a single opposing voice on the floor of the House, and passage is expected, but a fight is in prospect in the Senate.

Disclosures that the New England Power Co., subsidiary of the big international company, without the process of law or at least a hearing, is purporting to lease the Electric Co., is inspiring legislative leaders against the Power Trust to fresh action.

For the benefit of the public, Atty. Thomas H. Mahoney of Boston made a critical study of the redrafted bill and today he has written to the city of Boston, asking for a hearing on the "insurances" in shaping it, from beginning to end and deserved high praise.

"Under this bill it is assured that no property will be taken from a private citizen without fair value," said Atty. Mahoney.

Unconfirmed reports said 1000 persons perished in three Persian towns alone.

EDISON'S SEARCH ARE ANGRY

The search throughout the country for a young man to carry on Thomas A. Edison's work has aroused the Boston girls to a high pitch of indignation.

The consensus of opinion among business girls of Boston is that Edison should not limit his search solely to boys, but should give the girls an equal chance in the selection of his successor.

They declare a girl would have an equal chance of winning the four-year course in a technical college to follow in Edison's footsteps.

Miss Edythe H. Martin, secretary to Crocker-Horn, president of Skyways, Inc., stated that she just couldn't see why Edison has limited the search to boys.

"We mean to be able to take a man's place in most every line of business today," she said, "and I think there must be one girl in the whole United States who possesses the necessary genius to take Mr. Edison's place when he gets ready to retire. He seems to have forgotten Madame Curie's contribution to the world—radio. And then there's the girl who has been in the country's business who is capable enough to fill their shoes. So why the discrimination? I don't like it."

Miss Clyde Fernin, of the Western Electric Co., 400 Newbury St., Bay, declared that she considered it "the insult to the girls of America."

"There is no doubt that there are more boys who are mechanically minded than there are girls, but that doesn't alter the fact that there are girls who are equally capable. I don't think it's quite fair to discriminate against us."

STAGE AND SCREEN

ARK'S NOAH IS OLD-TIMER

Paul McAllister was chosen for the important role of Noah in "Noah's Ark," now at the Majestic, after extensive search and numerous screen tests that involved Hollywood's male population. The meaning of course, the actors who are in the movies at the "Folio Capital of Screenland." It was easier for McAllister to stimulate age by aid of wigs and beard, than to suit the other candidates to the role of this arch-builder. The screen's "Noah" was an actor Paul McAllister, 71, playing Shakespearean roles. He gained invaluable experience as leading man for the famous Proctor Brook Company in New York City, until finally "seasoned," he went on to greater achievements on the stage.

Finally he entered the movies as one of Jesse Lasky's first stars in the Famous Players series. His identity with the silver screen further coupled his name with such plays as "The Sign on the Door," "Peter Ibbotson," "What's Wrong with Women" and others of the past decade. His later cinema characterizations were in such pictures as "Old San Francisco," "Sorrell and Son," "Ben Hur," and "Abe's Irish Rose."

Court Scene Is Feature of Talking Picture

For a place in which to study human nature, there is none so prior to a courtroom, especially when a murder trial is in progress. In "The Captive Woman," synchronized talkie which comes to the Keith-Albee Theater on Monday, a murder trial is one of the outstanding features of the picture. George Fitzmaurice, who directed the picture in which Milton Sills and Dorothy Mackall have the leading roles, searched everywhere for the special types that he wanted to have sit on the jury.

Stage Drew Girl Headed Along Path Toward Concert and Opera Field

Vivian Hart, who appears tiny enough to be whisked out of the way by any of the velvet curtains, finally appears in Arthur Hammerstein's "Good Boy" at the Shubert Theater, has a big voice. It reaches F above high C, and has all the quality and volume necessary for operatic productions.

Miss Hart is a home product, having been trained for her work by her parents. Her mother was a concert singer of note, and her father was the dean of the Conservatory of Music at the State College of Washington.

Miss Hart admits a secret longing for the stage since childhood, but the family had instilled a concert and operatic idea so deeply in her that she lost sight of the stage.

Feature Player Once Lived in Worcester

Mary Nolan, who plays opposite John Gilbert in "Desert Nights," the sound synchronized Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer attraction at Loew's Orpheum Theater, the coming week, was a former Follies beauty and ardent model. Miss Nolan was born at St. Joseph, Mo., and was reared by the mother of St. Joseph's convent. When but 14, she came to live with a sister in New York. She remained at her sister's home long enough to save enough money to take her to New York. In New York, her first position was as a model for Arthur William Brown. Being of unusual beauty, she posed for such artists as Vernon Patten, Childs Haysman, James Montgomery Flagg, Neysa McEllen and Charles Dana Gibson. She was introduced to Arthur Hammerstein and was soon launched on her musical comedy career. Her engagement with Hammerstein shows were the forerunners of appearances in the Shubert Follies and many musical successes.

Harvard Dramatic Club Play Next Week

The Harvard Dramatic Club is giving as its spring production the musical comedy, "Good-Bye, Hello!" Harold C. Adamson, '30, wrote the music, and wrote Bernard D. Langheim, '30, composed the music. "Good-Bye, Hello!" will be presented at the Stratford Hall, Cambridge, on May 10, 11, and at the Repertory Theater, Boston, on May 11.

YIDDISH PLAY IS COMING

As a climax to the most successful season it has had in the eleven years of its existence, Maurice Schwartz announced that he has arranged to take his Yiddish Art Theater on a tour of the principal cities. The production to be taken on this tour will be the historic drama by Sholem Asch, "Kiddush Hashem." The touring company will include at least 10 people. Although a single performance next Monday, the touring season proper will open in Boston, at the Arlington Theater, next Tuesday. Mr. Schwartz has deferred the premiere of his Boston engagement out of respect for Eva Le Gallienne's Civic Repertory Theater which opened its Boston season at the Thalia Street Theater on Monday evening, May 4.

His own Boston engagement will present through Saturday evening, May 11, with a matinee on Saturday day.

Elks Hotel Chefs Win Culinary Awards

At the recent New England hotel annual exposition at the Copple Plaza Hotel, chefs of the Elks Hotel won five first prizes and two second prizes for culinary displays.

The first four prizes were won by Cesare DeLella, for Galette of Salmon, Omelette, Souffle, Vegetable Salad, and Hors d'Oeuvres on a decorated stand mounted by an elk.

Thrilling 6-Day Novel by Noted Author

What Has Gone Before

Ruth Micks comes back from school to her home in Cuba. Where her father, Lancy, is employed by his sugar interests. She has a great admirer in Ramon Fondeville, expelled from Princeton. Maurice North becomes a frequent visitor at the Micks household, neglecting Mrs. Fletcher, wife of the administrator of the sugar properties, to whom he had been attentive in the past. Don Miguel Bautista is the big power in the cane industry. Micks fears him. Edith Fletcher is a great admirer of Ruth, and inures the displeasure of her mother. Mrs. Fletcher is annoyed at Maurice's liking for Ruth.

Mrs. Bautista warns Ruth not to encourage Maurice. A great fire threatens the cane fields. Ruth goes to the scene with Ramon, against her father's orders. Ramon kisses her and tells her he loves her. She is not very responsive. She shows her daring and faces her father after the fire is under control. Two men are carrying a man. Lancy tells her to go home, as she can't help. A sack is laid over the man's head. Lancy, realizing he has shot Maurice, is troubled, wondering if he was really trying to fire the cane. Ruth rebels against Ramon, consoling herself that she's never told him she loves him. North is consumed with a silent admiration of Ruth. He stops at the Fletcher's on Christmas Eve to give Mary a present. But continues on to Ruth's.

Ramon's love affair with Ruth causes much comment. Her father has a fight with Arnold over the man killed in the cane, and the Christmas party breaks up with a row.

Ruth goes to Juarez and finds herself with Edith in a cafe with a sinister reputation. The great Don Miguel arrives. The Cabarras Bridge goes down and Don Miguel's agent lancy Lancy to report it as an accident. Lancy kicks the agent after a chase. (Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER 6
MR. BRITTON sat in his office, and Ruth Micks begged with him not to fire Hilario for his absence, explaining why he had gone.

She informed him that Don Miguel had brought a bad man with him and Lancy Duarte. It looked bad for Javier Micks.

She assured him she was taking Hilario and Congo Gomez with her, and Ramon, too, on a trip.

"I hear the Cabarras river bridge fell," remarked Britton. "Yes, Daddy went down late last night. He hasn't got back. At least, he hadn't when I left. It was pretty lucky in a way. Hilario told me some pretty surprising things."

"Ruth, I hope you haven't taken on too much." "Did you know Hilario's uncle, Domingo, was killed last night because he knew too much?"

"Who did it?" "This bad man."

Coming from the cane at Las Cabaas, Lancy Micks glanced about. As he looked left, something flicked him on the cheek. He was instantly aware of his helplessness, expectant of the second report.

He left his left foot go loose in the stirrup, reeled forward with a clever appearance of accident, and dropped. The horse, terrified, dashed the holster of the Colt safely against his stomach, lay perfectly still. Some friend or relation of Juan Martinez, he thought. A little later he got up. Lancy Micks bent down suddenly. A slim, empty 30-30 shell dropped into his breeches' pocket.

"I still don't see," protested Ramon. "And probably you won't. I have a lot of faith in Congo Gomez, however. Do you want to know what we're doing?"

"If you want to tell me, I don't care." "I feel awful inside," he admitted, "but it's just because I'm scared to death. Well, it's too late now. It's either all right, or it isn't. I'm having a man kidnapped here."

"Who?" asked Ramon, dazed. "It sounds silly, but I don't know his name. I've got to find out some things from him. I think he's the man who shot Hilario's uncle last night. Look down there. Is that a horse?"

Hilario appeared. "They got him, senorita." Ruth's hand went tight on Ramon's. "Where?" "By Las Cabaas. He had a 30-30 Winchester rifle."

Hilario laughed slightly. "Too quick for him. Your black man persuaded him." "We have him in the old tobacco barn on the south side," Hilario announced. There were three men, not continued on Page 17, Column 1.

Hartford, Ct., May 4 (INS)—Fifty dead a day was the average toll levied by motor vehicle accidents in this country during the first quarter of the year, according to figures of the Travelers' Insurance Company.

Reports received from state, health and motor vehicle authorities showed that 480 had been killed in motor accidents during the first three months of the year.

An attempt to flood Boston with counterfeit $20 gold notes is believed by United States secret service men to have been frustrated by the arrest of Samuel Sauls, 27, of Dudley st., Roxbury.

Sauls, in United States District Court today was held in $10,000 bail for the federal grand jury on the charge of issuing and uttering counterfeit money.

A small army of secret service men is at work in Boston and in several other cities as a result of the arrest of Sauls, while other agents are seeking the "plant" where the "queer" money is turned out. This plant is not in Boston, but is believed to be located in a distant city.

WOMEN IN COURT.
The cashiers of five such stations were present in Federal court today, but were not called upon to testify against the prisoner.

According to the secret service men, the counterfeit notes were passed during the rush hours in the subway, when the cashiers were busy making change they had opportunity to scrutinize carefully the bills allowed through their windows.

Thirteen of the counterfeit bills have turned up so far and it is believed that many more are in circulation.

KNOWN AS "SPIT BILLS."
They are what are known as "spit bills." Each side of a twenty-dollar certificate is photographed and printed on a separate piece of paper. The pieces are then pasted together, resulting in a piece of work that can be detected readily by the average person.

Mrs. Joseph Wise, wife of a former police officer and cashier at the Haymarket subway station, who brought about Sauls's arrest. The secret service agents have been working on the case for some time and all cashiers of the subway had been ordered to scrutinize carefully all $20 bills offered for change.

When the bill offered by Sauls was a counterfeit and managed to surmount an officer and have the money shown to him.

In connection with his arrest, Federal authorities today issued a warning to all Boston business houses to be on the lookout for the counterfeit bills as it is not known how many have been placed in circulation in the last ten days.

Judge Sobas He Sends
Slayer to Death Chair
Lake Pleasant, N. Y., May 4 (AP)—Tears welled in the eyes of Supreme Court Justice Heffernan and ran down his cheeks as he pronounced the first sentence of death in his four years on the high court bench upon Ernest Duane, 34, who slew his own friend.

Duane was convicted for killing Eula Davis, 60, who, like himself, was a guide in the Adirondacks.

"I have but one duty to perform," said Justice Heffernan. "I have sworn never to let a murderer go. Now, Mr. Duane, you stand convicted of murder in the first degree, for which the punishment is death." The judge's voice shook.

Money showed no emotion. The small courtroom, crowded by scores of lumberjacks and woodmen, many of whom knew both Davis and Duane, was silent as all listened, their eyes fastened on Duane. In a seat not far from the judge's bench, the judge's wife, who had been with him since they were married, was weeping.

Justice Heffernan set the execution for the week of June 4. Duane was found dead in his lonely cabin four miles north of Lake Pleasant, where he was shot on the evening of November 10, 1923. He had died trying to afford a rude handbag to his wife.

It was Duane who carried information of Davis' death to the officers. The bullet which took the veteran guide's life crashed through the State's evidence which was Duane's unwilling. Money showed the State contended was taken from the pocketbook, bullet-proof, was found at Duane's home.

Duane testified he remembered going to Davis' cabin. He remembered only seeing the cabin, he testified, and thereafter, was silent. He spoke in bed from a broken heart, he said, after his wife's death. Next day he put his hand into his pocket and found Davis' money.

"Then I know that what I dreamed was true," he concluded, "and I was a murderer."

HEIR'
A student at M. I. T. was identified today as the heir to a fortune for whom a country-wide search was being made, according to information from Albuquerque, N. M.

Learning of the search for 22-year-old Archie Catson, Dr. C. E. Lukins, superintendent of the Children's Home and Hospital at Albuquerque, supplied information linking the Tech student with the fortune.

Dr. Lukins said Archie Catson as a boy was one of his charges and was adopted by a couple named Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Strong, with the aid of a Tech alumni scholarship, sent him to the scientific school.

Truck Length
Bill Up Monday
The House here postponed until Monday consideration of the bill already passed by the Senate to increase the legal limit of the length of motor buses and trucks operating on roads of the State.

The bill to increase the annual salary of the members of the General Court from $2000 was reported favorably by the ways and means committee of the House. The committee, however, recommends that the act become operative on Jan. 1, 1925, which would mean that the members of the present House would not benefit by its passage.

The ways and means committee also voted to report the bill calling for an investigation by a special commission of the operation of the compulsory automobile liability insurance law.

HER MOTHER, HIS WIFE
AWAIT EXPLANATION
Little Daniel Frank Cupid found himself all snarled up today when word came from Manchester, N. H., that Thomas J. Cogswell, 23, of Commonwealth ave., Boston, and Agnes McGowan, 23, of Bellevue st., West Roxbury, had applied for a marriage license in that city.

The first discovery made was that the Commonwealth ave. address given is that of a tailor shop, where Cogswell is unknown, and then that the Bellevue st. address is one where Miss McGowan never was heard of.

Not it was learned that Cogswell, a drummer, living actually in Cedar st., Malden—although he has not been home since Sunday—was already married and is paying his wife $7 per week separate support.

SAYS DAUGHTER IS WED
And then Miss McGowan's mother, Mrs. Michael McGowan, of Sturges st., Woburn, declared her daughter told her she was married to Cogswell in Boston five weeks ago.

After giving this information, the mother sent down determinedly to await return home from Cogswell and Agnes, who, the mother said, were out riding.

According to Cogswell's wife, Mrs. Dorothy M. (O'Connell) Cogswell, of Cross st., Malden, they were married four years ago when they slipped to Nashua, N. H.

Two years ago they separated and Mrs. Cogswell later had her husband in court, she said, for non-support. He was ordered to pay her $7 a week.

Last Saturday night she was at a dance where he was playing in the orchestra and he drove her and a chum, Crendell Cook, of the same address, home in his car.

One Hurt, Two Held in Family Fight
Two men were arrested in Malden and a third man suffered injuries in a family brawl, during which knives and an ice pick are alleged to have been used by the combatants.

The men arrested are Joseph Alami, and his 29-year-old son, Carmelo, both of 173 Emerald st., in the Edgewater section of Malden. The injured man is Philip Alami, husband of Mrs. Sadie Alami, who, it is said, started the brawl, following an argument with her husband at their home in Adams st.

THE QUESTION
Do you believe the 19-year-old Cambridge girl who applied for marriage license should be given court permission to wed?

WILLIAM SMITH, 60, Forest st., says she should not be given court permission to wed.

JOHN M. CASSELLA, 120 Kent st.—Not in a thousand years a girl of 14 be allowed to marry with the permission of the court. A husband of a grammar school girl couldn't enjoy much married life if he had to break up with her in a year.

MISS LAVENA MACNEIL, 123 Washington st.—I do not believe a child of 14 years knows her own mind; so no marriage license should be granted her by the courts or sanctioned by the community.

GREY DAIRY FAVORITE PET OF AL SMITH WHILE HE WAS GOVERNOR

ZOO ATTRACTED THOUSANDS FROM ALL PARTS OF U. S.

'Al's' Happy Family Simple, Unaffected

FOUGHT ENEMIES HARD, BUT STATED THEIR GOD FRIEND

clothes were usually taupe or beige, unless the day's program called for a suit of navy blue. She usually wore simple dresses of a blue color at tea time. In the evening she favored midnight blue and gray, and always a corsage of orchids for any affair.

Mrs. Smith was an excellent housekeeper and always managed to know what was going on in the house. She was very fond of having people with her and often occupied the Governor's box at the Capitol Theater, with a group of young people.

The Governor's home actually was his hobby, with golf and bathing running second and third. He frequently tried to induce Mrs. Smith to take up golf, but she had but little interest in the game, preferring to devote her spare time to needle work, at which she was most proficient.

Although he could not play a note, the Governor was intensely fond of music and a radio, a victrola and a player piano were fixtures in the mansion. The Governor's liking for music was inherited by Walter, the youngest son, although he, too, was devoid of ability to play any instrument.

Was Well Liked

Smile Was Hypnotic—With Kind Word For All

Shrewd political observers and students of human nature have declared the banality, "to know him is to love him," was especially meant for Governor Smith. Men bitterly opposed to Smith's political principles, men of opposite faith and races, all were hypnotized by his beaming smile and his sturdy handshake when they met him.

More than one Republican, meeting Smith for the first time, has declared: "I don't agree with his political beliefs, I don't like his Tammany connections and I don't like his 'wet' leaning, but damn it all, I can't help liking the man personally."

And Smith had one particularly happy faculty. Once he was introduced to a man, he made him feel as if he had known him for ages, as if he were a friend of long standing.

As it was with humans, so was it with animals. Dogs in particular seemed to sense that the Governor was their friend. Stray mutts of undetermined antecedents would come up to him, their tails wagging, confident that they would receive a friendly pat and a kind word.

The Governor's zoo, in the rear of the mansion, probably was the largest private one in the country. Admirers from every part of the United States sent him animals of every kind and description, ranging from horned toads to burros, and every one was welcomed and fussed over.

The Governor's Great Dane, Jeff, short for Thomas Jefferson, was a practically an institution at the mansion. He was accorded special privileges denied the other dogs and was allowed the run of the mansion, which he accepted with grave dignity.

The Governor's reading was limited to the two local newspapers, through which he kept in close touch with national and international news. Mrs. Smith showed a fondness for books and magazines.

One precept of the Governor that caused much of his popularity, I believe, row with political enemies, but always was the same good friend afterward.

Arthur, Alfred, Ex-Gov. Smith, Walter, and Mrs. Smith. Her cares of state were put aside at Albany, the chief executive of New York delighted to be with his family, for although honors came fast to the erstwhile candidate for the presidency, he never was "high-hal."

Jeff, Great Dane, Was Governor's Pal

Jeff is now in the custody of Edwin Corning, former lieutenant-governor, inasmuch as he is a bit unwieldy for Governor Smith's present quarters at the Billmore Hotel in New York city.

During the presidential campaign last fall, Governor Smith frequently conducted the regular morning press conferences at the mansion and Jeff invariably attended. On one occasion he gravely went the rounds of all the

Story of Carpenter Boy of Nazareth Who Ever Grew in His Wisdom

WISDOM.—The carpenter boy of Nazareth, who was the subject of the story that has been running in the Boston Evening American, has been the subject of a story that has been running in the Boston Evening American.

CHAPTER XIX.—"Yes, I come from Nazareth, Joseph's voice, I would be found in a word to continue. 'I thought not,' said the man, 'I don't think you are an ugly look.' 'You might as well know you are not welcome over here. You had better keep away from the tent.'"

"For a moment Joseph was silent, then he spoke simply: 'I don't blame you for feeling as you do, I was the one who drove you boys away from our pasturage. I am sorry I did it.'"

DECEASED ARE THE WEEK.—"I came to tell you that there is enough pasture for your sheep as well as for all those who drive you boys away again. I would like to see your sheep well fed like mine. My father, Joseph, is president of the church and he and his boys are elders and chief citizens to agree to let you stay until you have rain in your own land."

"We are all children of one God," said Joseph, "and I would like to be friends with you. If the elders will, I'll come again. The boy stood to resolve a moment, then he took out his fine carpenter knife from his belt once more. He had noted with what easy the man from Nazareth had looked at it a few moments before. 'Here, friend,' said the man, 'I want you to take my knife. It is not so much that that piece of bronze.' As the man made no motion to take it, he dropped his precious knife at the feet of the amazed shepherd, said farewell, and was off to the hill.

A few days later he looked back and the man was examining the knife with every interest. He saw that the man from Nazareth was a carpenter, and he was off to the hill.

The boy stood to resolve a moment, then he took out his fine carpenter knife from his belt once more. He had noted with what easy the man from Nazareth had looked at it a few moments before. need or can use and they had none? Shall we use them? I thought of strange things, my boy. The Moab people will be the same. We should not be so sure of ourselves."

Your Pastor's Hobby, What Is It?

A goodly number of Boston and New England clergymen find their recreation and hobby in gardening. It is a hobby that is not only a work of art, but a work of love. It is a hobby that is not only a work of art, but a work of love.

"I thought not," said the man, "I don't think you are an ugly look." "You might as well know you are not welcome over here. You had better keep away from the tent." correspondents, offering his paw to each one.

"Just look at that hand-shaker," the Governor observed. "He's doing all he can to get to the White House."

Besides Jeff, there were several other dogs, including Buff, a collie presented the Governor by Frank X. Schwab, mayor of Buffalo; Pal, a setter, and Pinky, a Spitz, who was an especial pet of Mrs. John A. Warner, the Governor's eldest daughter.

With the exception of Jeff, Pinky and a Pekinese, the dogs all were kept in kennels adjoining the zoo in the rear of the mansion. Every night after dinner the Governor would take the entire collection for a romp about the grounds, while their joyful barks on being with their master would remind one of the noise caused by a cat in dog pound.

One of the tragedies of the mansion occurred when three police dogs presented to the Governor contracted distemper and two of them died. On his return from the Capitol each day, the Governor's first act was to visit the patients, frequently administering the medicine himself.

Another sad event in the zoo that touched the Governor deeply was the death of Sam Houston, the Texas burro sent to the Governor from the National Democratic convention at Houston last year. Sam, who by the way was a lady, was born during the convention and was brought to Albany by returning delegates.

The change in temperature, however, was too much for Sam's delicate constitution and faint pneumonia set in. The animal died just before election.

Those of you who are concluding the recital of the life and times of Governor Smith's home life may observe, "Why, he lived no differently than do I," and right you will be. The Smiths have been in the same mansion under Governor Smith's occupancy, as has been indicated before, was not a residence sheltering the head of New York State; it was the home of an average husband and father.

THE END.

When the Governor's youngest sons, Walter and Arthur were boys, two ponies were purchased for them. Garbed in cowboy clothing, with sombreros, chaps and lariats, they rode the range over the mansion grounds, frequently to the detriment of flower beds and shrubs.

Sons Were Happy
Pony Cart Was Popular But Got Into Trouble

A pony cart added to their pleasures. On one occasion the steel tired wheels of the cart slipped into the groove of the trolley tracks as the boys were driving along the street and refused to become dislodged. A trolley car with clanging bell, approaching from the rear, failed to disturb the composure of the boys as they jogged along.

Recognizing the drivers of the team as the Governor's sons, the motor-man lowered his car, dismounted and ran on foot to overtake the boys. Way-laying several pedestrians, he lifted the cart from the tracks and the boys set out on their way once more, only to slip back into the truck again a few moments later. The lifting performance was again repeated.

Those of you who are concluding the recital of the life and times of Governor Smith's home life may observe, "Why, he lived no differently than do I," and right you will be. The Smiths have been in the same mansion under Governor Smith's occupancy, as has been indicated before, was not a residence sheltering the head of New York State; it was the home of an average husband and father.

THE END.

When the Governor's youngest sons, Walter and Arthur were boys, two ponies were purchased for them. Garbed in cowboy clothing, with sombreros, chaps and lariats, they rode the range over the mansion grounds, frequently to the detriment of flower beds and shrubs.

Sons Were Happy
Pony Cart Was Popular But Got Into Trouble

A pony cart added to their pleasures. On one occasion the steel tired wheels of the cart slipped into the groove of the trolley tracks as the boys were driving along the street and refused to become dislodged. A trolley car with clanging bell, approaching from the rear, failed to disturb the composure of the boys as they jogged along.

Recognizing the drivers of the team as the Governor's sons, the motor-man lowered his car, dismounted and ran on foot to overtake the boys. Way-laying several pedestrians, he lifted the cart from the tracks and the boys set out on their way once more, only to slip back into the truck again a few moments later. The lifting performance was again repeated.

PIER PROS. THE NIGHT DANCE

By FOTALLA O. FARNSON
NEW YORK, May 4.—A subject as universally famous as bootleg whiskey is as good today as it was six years ago—maybe better—because we know more about the evils of bootleggers and their products today.

Six years ago Thomas Ince made a picture called "Those Who Dance," starring Warner Baxter, Blanche Sweet and Matthew Betz. The story of George Kibbe Turner, treated a sensation at the time, because it was called "daring" and "original."

It must have had some merit, for Warner Brothers have bought it. They are revamping it and adding dialogue to it for Monte Blue's next. Darryl F. Zanuck, who is the high mogul at Warner Brothers' studios these days, found the story and thinks well enough of it to bring it back. Howard Britherton will direct and James Alton will write the dialogue. James Alton is not alone there, but Jimmie Starr, newspaperman, trying to be important by using a middle name.

HAS there ever been a time that Denny refused to make a picture because he did not like the story or that Universal was unwilling to produce his ideas? It has come to be one of these chronic battles that keep you guessing. Denny and his advisers have just been in the throes of a nearly disastrous one, but it was again. Denny has given a new option and will be signed again to his studio.

Among the promises made is that Denny will make the "Third Party" as a second picture under his new contract. His first will be "Companionate Trouble," with Myrna Kennedy as the leading woman and Greta Garbo as the second lead.

Camilla Horn has had so much good luck these last few days that she has taken to her bed to recover from the nervous excitement. All that can happen in a few days in the life of a movie star is nobody's business.

First, Camilla, rejected by United Artists because of her German accent, arrived in New York, tested and was rejected. She came the day. Warner gave her a job in a talkie in the studio. She had scarcely recovered from the happiness of being able to make this picture at the Warner studios in Brooklyn when Warner asked for an option on her services with the idea of starring her in the German picture. She refused, so she took pen and ink in hand, the Fox Company sent an emissary to wait on her. He told her if she would not like to remain in America, if she had there is a nice little contract waiting for her from the Fox Company. Wonder Camilla is sick—tick with joy.

CRANE WILBUR is coming back into the movies. Crane was one of the earliest motion picture stars and in his day was one of the most popular. He is not in the picture, however, is not to the screen as an actor, but as a screen writer for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Mr. Wilbur in the interim plays—some of them very successful—for the stage. He has had the good sense when he realized his own had set at a big price to turn his hand to something else.

SOME years ago John Emerson and Anita Loos wrote a smart comedy called "The Road to Reno," which was a big hit. It had movie possibilities. John and Anita always write their plays with the weather eye to movies for Anita got her first start in life writing screenplays.

Bootleg's Alarm
Didn't Tell Police
Wilmington, Del., May 4 (AP)—A bootlegger's alarm failed to serve its purpose. Police searched 100 feet from a house were attached to a light on a balcony in a building in such a manner that the approach of an intruder would create a bang. Nevertheless, federal agents captured a still and two men.

MISS LIGGETT BACK FROM EUROPE; MISS RANTOUL WEDS NEXT WEEK

WEDDING PLANS AND PRE-NUPRIAL AFFAIRS galore await the arrival today of Miss Lorraine Liggett with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Liggett, from a two month trip abroad. Strong winds delayed the docking of their ship at New York but nothing will delay the elaborate preparations for the wedding of this young social favorite to Arthur Scrivener, Jr., of Richmond, Va., after they reach home.

HARDLY had the LIGGETTS UNPACKED their southern wardrobe after their Florida sojourn than business called the master of the Chestnut Hill mansion abroad, and Paris modistes interrupted the bride-to-be. It was early in March that these travelers took ship, while invitations to and plans for the wedding were held up pending their return.

WHEN MISS MABEL RANTOUL WALKER comes down the candid aisle of Emmanuel Church next Saturday to become Mrs. Richard Bowditch she will have bridal attendants from several cities at large. Concluding a globe circuiting trip to act as maid of honor, her sister, Miss Harriet, is now speeding eastward from San Francisco. En route north from the sun-plagued palaces of Mexico City is Miss Elizabeth Lewis, former classmate at Vassar, and from St. Louis comes another college friend, Miss Virginia Sluder. Miss Martha Love of New York, Miss Sally Bowditch, sister of the groom, Miss Margaret Forbes, Miss Barbara Burnard of Milton, Miss Barbara Lutz and Miss Helen Swain of Boston complete the bride's entourage with Josephine Murray, small daughter of her cousin, Mrs. Henry Murray, as flower girl.

TRAILING A RARE OLD FAMILY POINT LAKE, will give gleaming white satin train, this bride moves altitudinally, accompanied by her bevy of bridesmaids in jade chiffon and her honor matron in pink. The flower motif for church decoration is to be tulips and larkspur, and the bride's bouquet of orchids. The ring ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Edward Worchester, and the Rev. John Harris. The honeymoon is to be in Alaska and the new home at 8 West Hill pl.

THOMAS MANDELL OF HAMILTON WILL BE best man and the corps of ushers who will be in the fashionable audience in ribbon girdled pinks include Earl Kirkham of Cleveland, Robert S. Dodd of Buffalo, John Hitch of New York, George Midway of New London, Conn., Carlton Mahley of Providence, Warren O. Taylor of Cambridge, John Monte, Weston Howard, Shaw Sprague, J. T. Baldwin and Dr. Henry Murray of Boston.

PREWEDDING DAYS ARE TO BE FILLED with trousseau gathering and renewing old friendships for Miss Betty Myrick Gibbs whose wedding date has been set for August 17. Her trou is pledged to Harold T. Hungerford of St. Louis. Miss Gibbs sails on June 3 for Europe with her younger sister, Miss Jane, for several weeks in Italy and France.

"SMART FROM USHERS TO BOLD SOLDIERS," describes the audience which lends its presence to the opening performance of "Cherry Orchard" Monday evening at the Hollis St. Theater. This is as it should be, when the Church Home Society is to be benefited by the premiere of Eva Le Gallienne's Civic Repertory company, with Nazimova in the stellar role.

MRS. WARREN D. ARNOLD of Chestnut Hill, daughter of Mrs. George Brewster Baker, is the bride of the year. She is a young woman, including Miss Mary Louise Dandridge, Miss Virginia Gardner, Miss Elizabeth Sluder, Miss Katherine Robb, Miss Elizabeth South, Miss Louise Waterhouse, Miss Priscilla Waterhouse and Miss Ruth Wellington.

IF ONE WOULD BEAT BOSTON for the earliest motion picture, one should turn to the orchestra stand of the theater on this occasion, for virtually the entire social register list, not abroad, will be there. The patroness list is my authority, since it begins with the Rev. and Mrs. Thayer Addison and runs through the alphabet of important names to Mrs. Charles F. Wentworth and Miss Cornelia Whitte.

A HARVARD UNDERGRADUATE, 30, has dipped his pen into the inkpot where seethes the loves and hates of his imaginary Hollywood and from the motion picture studio he has emerged "The Harvard Dramatic Club." "The true musical comedy, I'm told, with all the color of the most picturesque spot in the world running through it."

TIME WAS WHEN this noted dramatic club produced only the offerings of undergraduate competition, and the future overgrown and somewhat naughty play may have influenced the decision to return to this policy. At any rate, society endures in offering with an imposing program list and one of its loveliest daughters, Miss David S. C. corresponding secretary, through it. "Close-Up" will appear at Braintree Hall May 11, and at the Community Center May 12.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Boston Section, National Council of Jewish Women, will be held at 2 p. m. at the Community Center of Temple Adas Shalom, Marshall and Beach sts., Brookline. Mrs. Hyman Freiman will give her president's report. The following slate has been nominated: Mrs. William Remosky, president; Mrs. Nehemiah Whitman, Mrs. Robert J. Culbert, Mrs. Lyman Leuberg, Mrs. J. F. Friedman, first, second, third, fourth and fifth vice-presidents, respectively; Mrs. Joseph J. David, treasurer; Mrs. Leon Shattuck, financial secretary; Mrs. David S. C. corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. E. Wyman, recording secretary. A social hour and strawberry festival will follow.

SOUTH END WOMEN'S CLUB will hold its annual meeting at the South End Women's Club will take the form of a public dinner at the Hotel Marlborough, which Miss Katherine C. McDonald is chairman. It will be held at 8 p. m. Refreshments will be served.

SUCCEEDS DE GROOT
Washington, May 4.—Howard W. Amel was appointed United States attorney for the eastern district of New York, to succeed William De Groot, who was dismissed by order of President Hoover.

THE CHESHAM RAYMOND'S

Uncle Eph was in town again today.

But if you were anywhere near the vicinity of Raymond's, you would have known it already.

In the old cart drawn by a jock of color, Uncle Eph and his companions, including J. Foster, Ed. Dennis, Sam Basson and the Townsends, arrived in front of Raymond's at exactly 8 a. m.

At 8:15, when the doors opened to mass of the greatest bargain ever offered, there was a crowd estimated by police at more than 1000 gathered at the various entrances. They fled through without disorder, and that Uncle Eph had provided ample merchandise for customers at least.

As the day wore on Uncle Eph's customers of long standing—coming back for more—poured through the front and rear doors of the store, taking even the service provided by the addition of 1100 men and women to the sales force.

AND THE NOON CROWD
When noon arrived, with its lunch-bought crowd, the store was thronged with its half-holiday throngs, the greatest day in Uncle Eph's and Raymond's history was already an assured conclusion.

Happy enough, it was a perfect day overhead and under foot. But Uncle Eph never yet made a best day without bringing good weather with him. M. M. Church, Children's Hospital and the Chesham.

NEW COLOR AD SCHEME
To Mr. Deere goes the credit for a great innovation in newspaper advertising—the four pages of Raymond's color advertising, which through yesterday's editions of the Boston Evening American.

Mr. Deere conceived the idea that it would be possible to carry out the color scheme without using a special section and printing on the same process as that used in the paper.

The four brown advertising pages which stood out so boldly yesterday's Boston Evening American were printed on the same process and at the same time as the black ink. This was made possible without having the black and brown ink run together by growing certain press rolls in the Cleveland and partitioning the ink troughs.

MONDAY CLUB MEETINGS

DUCKLING is a King, one of the specialties of the Weber Duck Inn at Wrentham, was the first kitchen by Chef Remondo Mesones, demonstration in the Martha Lee Here's the secret:

WOODCOCK RELISH
Woodcock Relish is one of the most delicious Weber Duck specialties, was prepared by brooding 3 firm cababanes from which the hard centers had been removed. The cababanes were added 4 finely shredded green peppers and 4 dill pickles chopped in very fine strips lengthwise. This mixture was next broiled and added. Over this was poured 4 dressing made of 1 cup of tarragon vinegar and 1 c. of olive oil and 1 tsp. of salt and celery seed. The relish was tossed together and served after being generously sprinkled with salt and pepper and 3 drops of sugar. It was allowed to stand in the ice chest for an hour before serving. This will keep 2 or 3 days.

Uncle Eph Entertains

Pini's Special Cheese, with its ornamental duck and flower decorations, made the main feature in the Martha Lee Kitchen. This is the formula:

PINI CHEESE
One lb. of cream cheese was first softened in a water bath of ripe Roquefort cheese. To this was added 4 Queen ovals (finely chopped), 1 green pepper (finely chopped), 5 p. nutmeg, 1 tsp. onion, 1 sprig of parsley (minced), 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. cream, 1 tsp. butter and 4 oz. (3 tbsps.) of sweet butter and 1 tsp. Worcester-shire sauce.

This is mixed all together thoroughly in a cream cheese mixer with softened butter until it can be piped through a pastry tube. It is then returned to the ice chest, chilled and sliced down to be served with crisp crackers.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Throng of Bargain Hunters

Uncle Eph was in town again today.

But if you were anywhere near the vicinity of Raymond's, you would have known it already.

In the old cart drawn by a jock of color, Uncle Eph and his companions, including J. Foster, Ed. Dennis, Sam Basson and the Townsends, arrived in front of Raymond's at exactly 8 a. m.

At 8:15, when the doors opened to mass of the greatest bargain ever offered, there was a crowd estimated by police at more than 1000 gathered at the various entrances. They fled through without disorder, and that Uncle Eph had provided ample merchandise for customers at least.

As the day wore on Uncle Eph's customers of long standing—coming back for more—poured through the front and rear doors of the store, taking even the service provided by the addition of 1100 men and women to the sales force.

AND THE NOON CROWD
When noon arrived, with its lunch-bought crowd, the store was thronged with its half-holiday throngs, the greatest day in Uncle Eph's and Raymond's history was already an assured conclusion.
Happy enough, it was a perfect day overhead and under foot. But Uncle Eph never yet made a best day without bringing good weather with him. M. M. Church, Children's Hospital and the Chesham.
